Refusal of Treasury Department to Reverse Ruling Arouses Indignation.

Safety and decency dictated the persistence of the Treasury Department in the time-honored ruling that no women are to be allowed aboard coast guard cutters in the decision barring women of the press of New York city from such privileges. But the fair sisters of the writing fraternity do not like told him that the presence of a German the ruling, and ask no special consid-

"Hang your paternal solicitude," says for Germany its purchase of the Fanta at elegram to the Secretary of the Treasury from Lou Rogers, one of the applicants for the privilege accorded to men of the tribe of scribes on special occasions. "Business women want a square deal from their government."

To Germany its purchase of the Fanta in the applicants for the privilege accorded to men of the tribe of scribes on special occasions. "Business women want a square deal from their government. They have brains and sense enough to judge for their own safety."

How Trouble Started.

But it was not Secretary McAdoo who was responsible for the refusal that provoked this message. It was Assistant Secretary Andrew J. Peters, in charge of customs, supporting a ruling made by Dudley Field Malone, collector of customs at the port of New Ryndam of the Holland-American line. The two applicants were unable to get the permits and were told they must have the permission of the steamship company's officials.

Refused permits by the company, the women went back to the collector's office and began their fight. Mr. Malone was absent, but his representatives finally admitted that, while it was discrimination, the government long ago had ruled that passage on board the cutter should not be given to women.

Formal protest then was sent to the Secretary of the Navy, with an appeal that he reverse the ruling. Secretary Daniels put the matter up to the Treasury Department.

President Mezes spoke of the ideals and realizations of the college. He expressed his firm belief that the future leaders of the great metropolis would spring from the city's college, for it stands for no factions, but for the whole city. The training afforded at the college, he said, was, in comparison with the other institutions he intimately knew, more thorough and more intensive.

He outlined the cultural and vocational courses that are now being given to meet both the cultural and practical demands of the great city. He laid equal emphasis on both phases of study and added that those, however, who came to the college for the municipal courses were lured to the Last night a farewell entertainment in celebration of the receipt of orders relieving the command was held in the big Y. If your coal-bin could talk it would advise you to buy today an IDEAL-AMERI-CAN outfit!

The fuel economy of IDEAL Boilers is the result of accurately placed fire surfaces, inner flues, and corrugated fire pots which admit the air in proper amounts for the complete combustion of the rich gases from the fuel. Too much or too little air wastes or kills the fire. An IDEAL Boiler will get all the heat out of the fuel-the smallest amount of coal is made to produce maximum volume of heat!

The Labor Savings of IDEAL Boilers depend upon their generous fire pots, which hold sufficient fuel to last from 8 to 24 hours, without shoveling coal and refilling.
